

What Farmers Taught Me

Farming is the Best Life...even when you can't do it anymore.

You can take the boy out of the country...but you can't take the country out of the boy!

MUGWUMP MARKETING

Memories of a Former Kid By Bob Artley

For Release the Week of : January, 2012

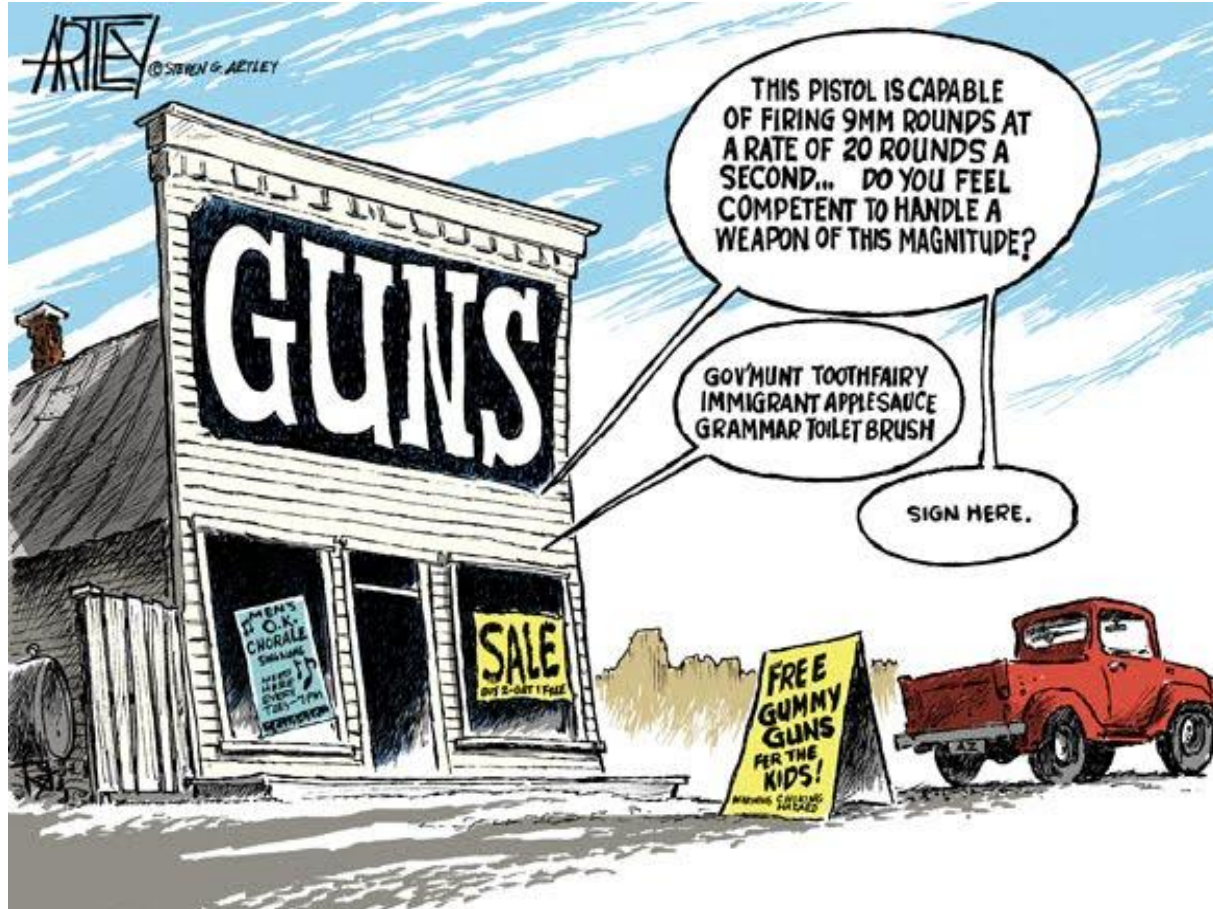

Farmers Respect a Hard Worker

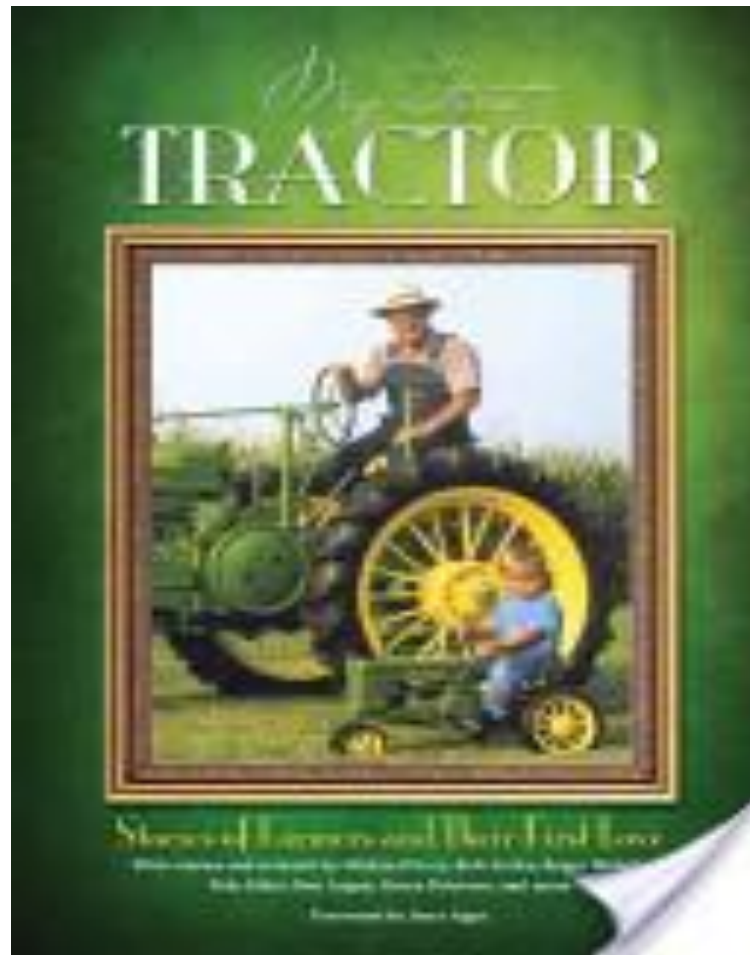

If you want to influence farmers, you better make sure you can survive the coffee shop talk.

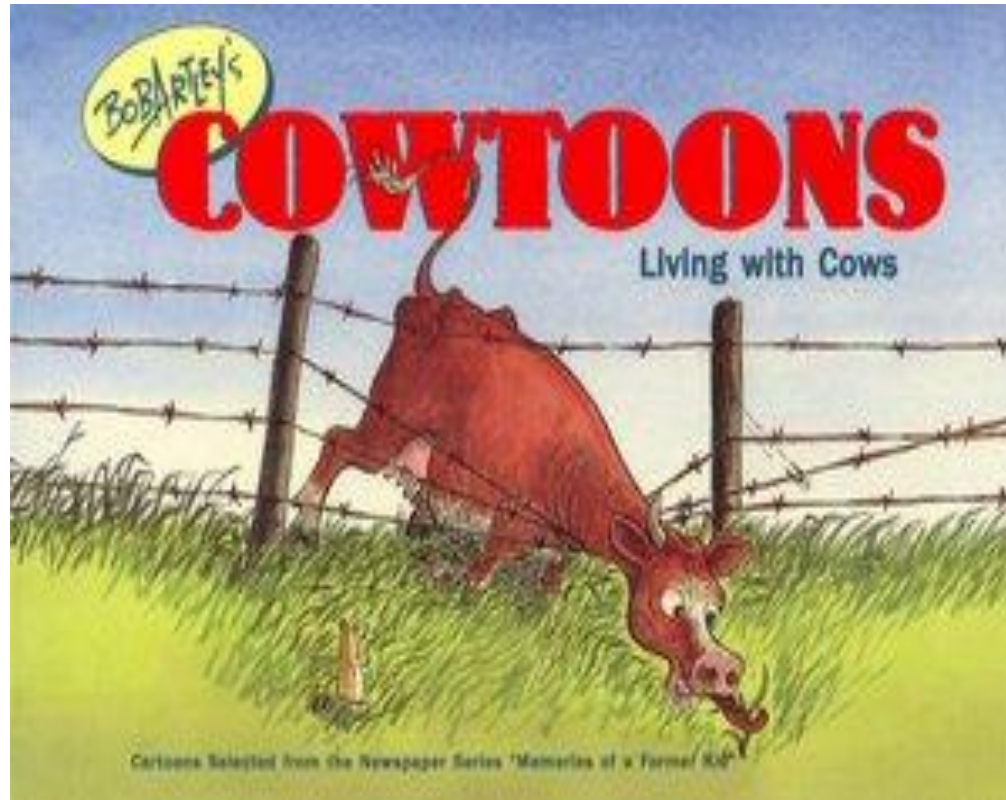

Farmers want to run agriculture.

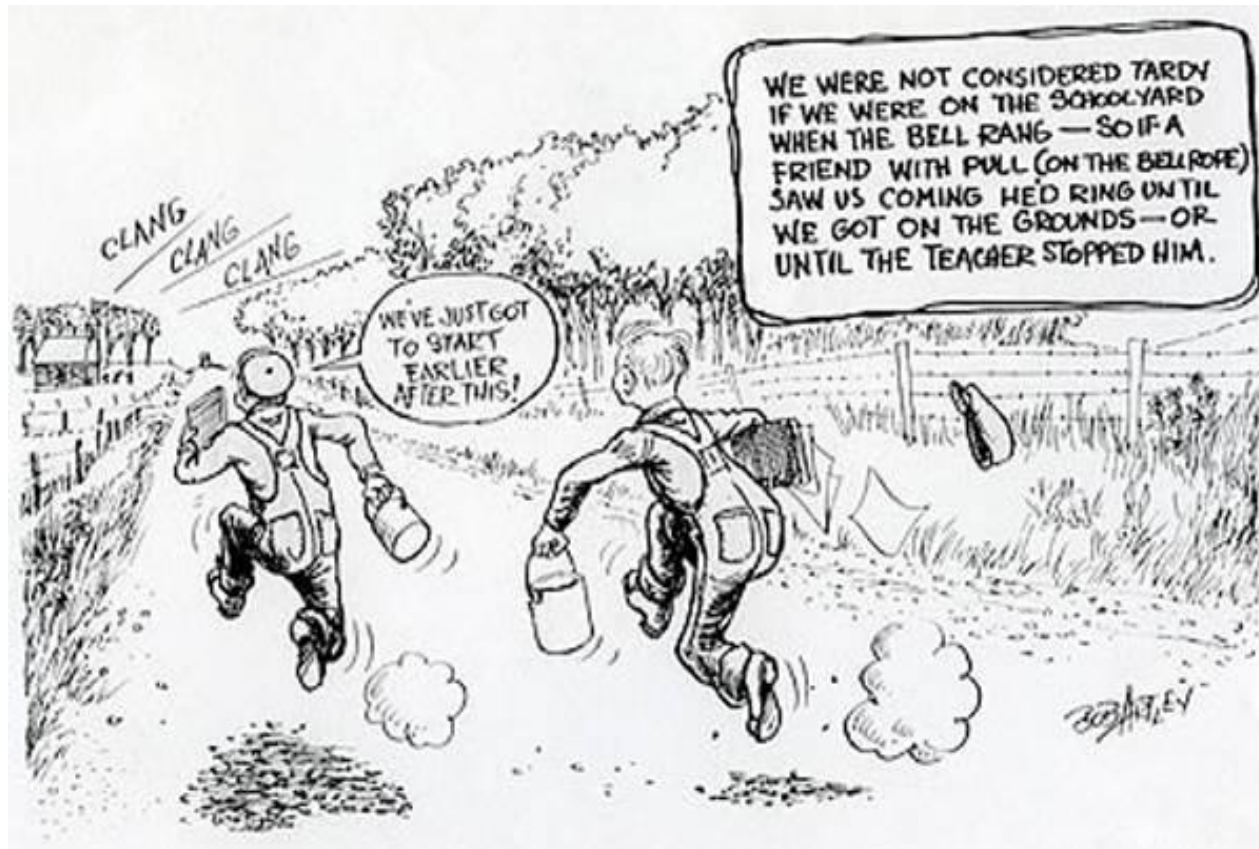

Being “showy” is not admired.

Farmers taught me that successful farming involves saving money as much as it involves making money.

Agriculture does it much better together

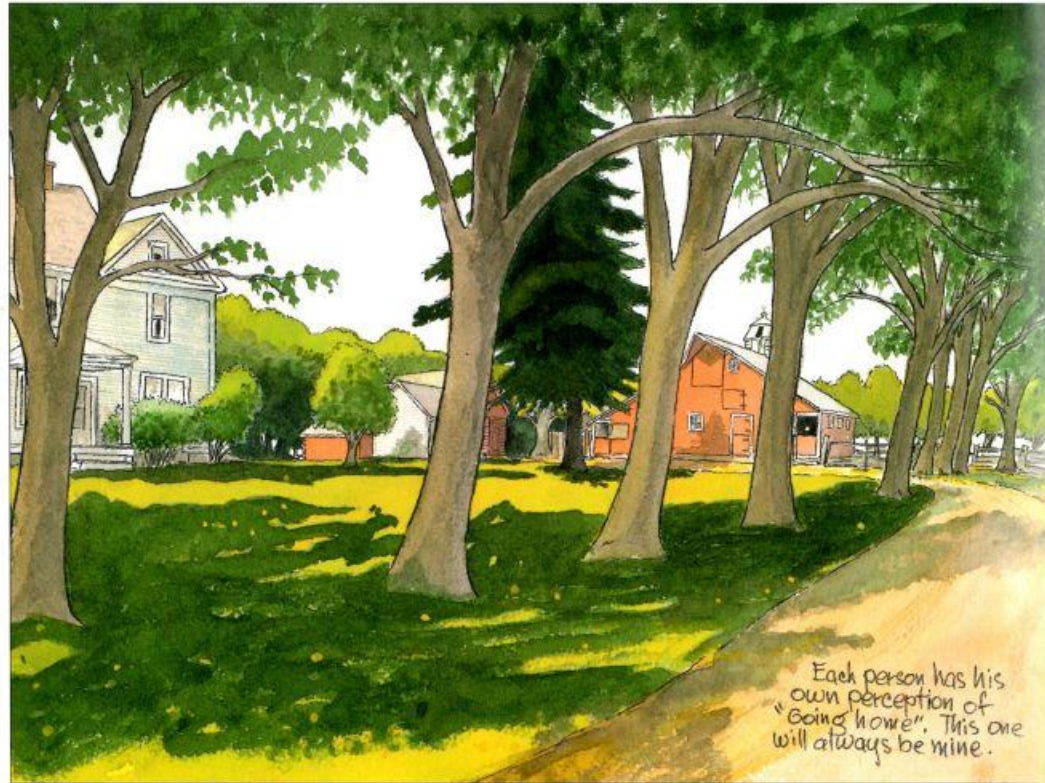

CLANG
CLANG
CLANG

WE'VE JUST GOT TO START EARLIER AFTER THIS!

WE WERE NOT CONSIDERED TARDY IF WE WERE ON THE SCHOOLYARD WHEN THE BELL RANG — SO IF A FRIEND WITH PULL (ON THE BELLROPE) SAW US COMING HE'D RING UNTIL WE GOT ON THE GROUNDS — OR UNTIL THE TEACHER STOPPED HIM.

BOB ARLEY

The more farmers are challenged, the more they listen to wise farmer leaders.

If you're going to be a nutrient applicator...you want the best seat in the house!

